Dear Clerks,

Please distribute to all members of Council.

Approximately 1,159,000 Canadians and Newfoundlanders served in the 2nd World War. Deaths totaled 44,000 and more than that were wounded.

Surely we can have one day a year in quiet contemplation and respect for these men and women who sacrificed so much. People who have come to Canada have come to Canada because of the country they sacrificed for. They fought from “the setting of the sun to the morning light.” Surely November 11th is a sacred day for all Canadians no matter where they came from or what their religion. It deserves better than evening fireworks that sound like bombs blasting on what should be a quiet time of reflection and remembrance.

Lest We Forget.
Respectfully,
Louella Brace
