STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Description of Property – Samuel Curtis House, 3536 Wass Crescent

The Samuel Curtis House is located on the west side of Wass Crescent near the corner of Burloak Drive and Lakeshore Road West. The property contains the Samuel Curtis House.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

Design Value or Physical Value

The subject property has cultural heritage value for its c.1860 house, known as the Samuel Curtis House. An early example of the Gothic Revival style, the house exhibits features typical of this era, such as the pointed window in the front gable. This style was commonly used for farmhouses and is often referred to as the 'Ontario Farmhouse' style. As an earlier example of this style, the house displays a restrained simplicity that would become less common towards the end of the 19th century as more decorative embellishments were used.

Designed with a typical 'Ontario Farmhouse' T-shape plan, the house has a 1 ½ storey front portion with a gable roof intersected by a one-storey rear wing with a gable roof perpendicular to the front. The front of the house contains a steep central gable, a common feature of the Gothic Revival style. The red brick is finished in Stretcher Bond with unique brick detailing, including the buff brick and red brick voussoirs above windows and doors, the raised brickwork above the front pointed window and the punched and raised brickwork below the front first storey windows.

The front entrance contains a decorative door surround with sidelights, transom windows, wood panelling and wood brackets. Above the entrance is a foliated pointed window in the front gable while the rest of windows on the first and second storeys are 6/6 wood windows. Stone sills are located beneath each of the windows and a stone course separates the brickwork from the lakestone foundation. The eaves on the front portion of the house are embellished with a scalloped wood bargeboard. A more decoratively designed bargeboard with a finial adorn the front central gable. Two historic brick chimneys with ornamented brickwork are located on both the east and west sides of the front gable roof while a simple brick chimney marks the rear wall of the one-storey wing.

At one time, a Victorian decorated verandah enhanced the front façade and evidence of its location can still be seen on the brickwork. While the current shutters are not historic, the house likely had louvered wood shutters on all of the windows when it was constructed.

The house is a well-constructed and well-maintained example of an early Gothic Revival style home. Since many similar homes in Oakville have been lost over the years, the Samuel Curtis House remains a significant and increasingly rare example of its style.

Historical Value or Associative Value

The property has cultural heritage value for its associations with the Curtis family who built the house and owned the property for over 100 years, operating a dairy farm on the land.

In 1847, Samuel Curtis purchased part of Lot 35 on the Broken Front, also known as Concession 4 SDS, from Philip Sovereign, one of the early settlers in Bronte. The 100-acre parcel ran north from the lakefront along what is now Burloak Drive, to about two thirds of the way to what is now Rebecca Street.

Records indicate that Samuel first lived in a little frame house that was once located on the other side of Lakeshore Road until he could build the brick house around 1860. This frame house along the lake was known in the family for many years as the 'Original House'. In 1858, Samuel married Rebecca Lucas from Nelson Township and they had at least five children together. It is possible that the house was built even earlier, by 1858, to accommodate Samuel's new wife and family-to-be.

The family ran a dairy farm on the property which was continued well into the 20th century. Given the solid masonry construction of the house, and the fact that they had a servant living in the house according to the 1871 Census, the family must have done well for themselves financially. Records indicate that Samuel was a school trustee for the local Bronte schools in the 1880s and 1890s.

The property remained in the Curtis family until 1952. In 1984, the land was developed as a plan of subdivision and new streets and homes were constructed on the original farmland. As part of this subdivision, about 1/3 of an acre around the house was reserved as a separate lot in order to conserve the house in situ. Directly to the west, a similar sized parcel was retained at the corner of Burloak Drive and Lakeshore Road as Town-owned parkland, known as the Samuel Curtis Parkette.

Contextual Value

The Samuel Curtis House is contextually significant as a remnant of the area's rural and agricultural past. Once surrounded by farmland, the house serves as a reminder of the historical development and use of the land by European settlers.

The building is also a landmark along Lakeshore Road, one of the most historically significant travel routes in southwestern Ontario. The house has always retained a prominent and visible presence along the road as well as a strong connection with the waterfront. Facing both Lakeshore Road and the lakefront, the building's location and orientation are an important part of the building's contextual significance. This connection is further solidified through the property's adjacency to the Samuel Curtis Parkette and the Samuel Curtis Path which connects to Oakville's Waterfront Heritage Trail.

Description of Heritage Attributes

Key attributes of the property which embody the physical, historical and contextual significance of the Samuel Curtis House include the following attributes, as they relate to all four exterior elevations of the 1 ½ storey brick house and the west, north and east elevations of the one storey brick wing attached to the north of the house:

- The 1 ½ storey form and structure of the front brick portion of the house;
- The one storey form and structure of the rear brick portion of the house;
- The red brick cladding in Stretcher Bond, including all red and buff brick voussoirs and decorative brickwork;
- The lakestone foundation including brick voussoirs above the basement windows and stone course separating brickwork and lakestone;
- Placement of the doors and windows;
- 6/6 wood windows, including all wood window trim;
- Pointed Gothic window on front elevation, including all wood window trim;
- Stone window and door sills;
- Front entrance, including wood panelled door, transom and sidelight windows, wood brackets and all wood trim;
- East side entrance, including wood panelled door and wood trim;
- Wood soffit, fascia, moulding and decorative bargeboard, including finial on front gable;
- Two red brick chimneys on front portion of house and one red brick chimney on rear portion of house;

- The historic and current location of the building on the property and its orientation with the front of the house facing the lake; and
- Views of the house from lakeshore Road.

The designation of the subject house under the Ontario Heritage Act is not intended to prevent the owners from constructing a Regency-style porch across the full front elevation based on historical and physical evidence of the porch that was historically located there.
